WE THOUGHT

at one time that all Gladiolus Bulbs graded up to the sizes known to "The Trade" in general, were of uniform quality and flowering properties, irrespective of where or under what conditions they were produced. Many years' experience has dispelled this illusion, for subsequent results are entirely dependent upon (1) expert culture; (2) locality where grown; (3) proper facilities for harvesting and storing.

WE TRIED

every method and care to ensure our bulbs being better than the best that others were producing. We were out to sell, not one order, but to build a reputation for ourselves as an authority and dependable headquarters for the highest grade bulbs of the finest varieties in commerce. We have urged and induced many growers to replace the older varieties with some of the greater and better 'Glads' of recent years, grown on our now famous Long Island Farm.

that no better bulbs are produced in any part of the country. For many years we have held the leadership in both quality and volume of sales. We are careful to select our planting stock of picked young bulbs that produce those round, high-crowned bulbs that critical buyers demand.

Sound quality, reasonable prices, and a well-balanced list of the choicest commercial varieties are reasons why we handle a greater quantity of bulbs than any other Eastern growers.

GIANT FLOWERING HYBRID AMARYLLIS

Having the finest collection of Amaryllis is the pride of every one connected with our firm; and for many years we have spared neither time nor expense in constantly improving the strain.

Wherever we have seen an outstanding plant, we purchased it irrespective of the cost; two years ago we acquired a gold medal collection of perfectly formed pure white and pink specimen at a cost of $20.00 a bulb. In addition to this, we only save the seed of our very finest specimen. We therefore know that nothing more perfect could possibly be offered regardless of price.

Our selection does not only include a very wide range of colors, but also some with beautiful markings and mottled throats.
